Day Trips: April-June 2020

Repurposeful: Quilt Exhibit

This exhibit at Stevenson University School of Design (Owning Mills, MD) displays the work of Glenda Richardson and Rosalind Robinson of the African American Quilters of Baltimore. The quilts are made with recycled and repurposed clothing, found objects, buttons, beads, jewelry, lace, and vintage linen. In addition to exhibiting a sensitivity to the current societal focus on waste in the textile industry, the inclusion of items from family and friends in the work has imbued it with an intrinsic history that adds meaning and depth to the story that each piece tells.
