Executive Gardner Highlights Schools, Libraries, Parks and More Projects in Preliminary Capital Budget

Virtual Public Hearing Scheduled for March 22nd

FREDERICK, MD –County Executive Jan Gardner today shared highlights of major construction projects included in the preliminary capital budget, reviewed operating budget requests, and announced plans to hold a virtual public hearing on the upcoming fiscal year. The budget is based on no property or income tax rate increases. Highlights of the six-year Capital Improvement Program include two new schools in the Oakdale/Linganore area to alleviate crowded schools, renovation of Thurmont Elementary School, new libraries in Middletown and Oakdale/Linganore, and expansions of the Old National Pike District Park and Othello Regional Park. Executive Gardner encouraged the community to share their priorities at her March 22 public hearing.

“Preparing the county budget is the most important responsibility I have as County Executive and the most significant task we do together as a community,” said Executive Gardner. “I want to hear from the public to make sure the County’s budget reflects our community’s priorities.”

In the draft capital budget, priority school projects remain on track. These include the construction of the new Rock Creek School, Blue Heron Elementary School, a larger Waverley Elementary, a new Brunswick Elementary School with a community gymnasium, and a 300-seat addition to Crestwood Middle School. Other projects in the six-year Capital Improvement Program include new fire stations in Green Valley, Carroll Manor and Jefferson Tech, an expansion of the Animal Control center, trails, and new park development and expansion.
